

Wonderful Woolpit!

What a fabulous Harvest Festival! There was a real air of excitement on Friday morning as the children prepared to leave for the harvest festival in church. So many items of food were brought in to school – thank you so much, the shopping trolley was overflowing! Children were packing boxes to take to the church for Stowmarket Foodbank and practising their songs and poems. As a staff we were really pleased to see that the children followed our expectations of behaviour when walking through the village and in church – well done to everyone.

It was so lovely to see parents, grandparents and siblings joining in our harvest celebration – I'm glad we managed to find enough seats for everyone 😊 We are planning to have a Christmas service towards the end of term. I will let you know the details nearer the time, but will make sure you have the date to pencil in your diaries asap.

Don't forget it is a PD day on the 18th October 2019. Teachers will be at Thurston Community College for some training so there will be no one in school.

Have a good weekend and week to come.

New appointments

Mrs Julia Dinley and I have been busy interviewing over the last few weeks for a part time teacher in Hedgehog Class and in Year 1. I am really pleased to say that we have 2 lovely teachers starting after half term.

Mrs Brydon, will be working with myself and Mrs Hardiman to teach Hedgehog class, whilst I am carrying out my role as Acting Headteacher. Mrs Brydon will generally work Tuesday and Wednesday with some Friday's too. We are really looking forward to working with her after half term.

Mrs Sinclair will be working alongside Mrs Davies on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday in Rabbit class. She particularly enjoys outdoor learning (make sure you have your wellies in school Rabbits 😊). She is very keen to get to know the children and families as quickly as she can.

Mrs Brandon will be going on maternity leave at half term, we wish her well and thank her for her all that she has done for the school. We are really looking forward to meeting 'Baby Brandon' and seeing her back in school next year.
